

$80,000 GIVEN FOR ANIMAL HOSPITAL

Mrs. James Speyer, President of the Women's League, Expects to Obtain $100,000 Fund.

Mrs. James Speyer, president of the New York Women's League for Animals, announced yesterday that $80,000 has been raised within the last few months for the establishment of an animal hospital in this city. Of this sum $25,000 was given by an anonymous contributor at a recent meeting of the league in the Hotel Plaza, where more than one hundred new members were obtained for the league.

Mrs. Speyer wishes to have the membership increased to its present number—six hundred—to twelve hundred, and she is sanguine that the fund will soon be $100,000. The president of the league said that the society only was started in December, 1910, and therefore is barely more than one year old.

In the meantime a junior branch of the league has been formed with a charter membership of fifty. At a meeting in the home of Mrs. Speyer, No. 257 Madison avenue, 178 boys and girls from the public schools listened to a lecture by Mrs. Mary Sage, who is an authority on dumb animals. Many new members are expected to swell the ranks of the junior branch, which has its own organization, president and other officers.

Members of the senior league pay from $5 to $50 each in membership fees to help the horses, dogs, cats and other animals. On the contribution list are Mrs. Russell Sage, with a subscription of $10,000; Mr. Alfred G. Vanderbilt, $10,000; Mr. James Speyer, $10,000; Mrs. Frederick W. Vanderbilt, $5,000; Miss E. M. Clark, $5,000; Mr. Archer M. Huntington, $5,000; Mr. Thomas F. Ryan, $2,000; Mr. James Stillman, $1,000; Mr. Arthur Curtis James, $1,000; Mr. Charles Boughton Wood, $1,000; Mr. Elbert H. Gary, $1,000; Mrs. George B. Bland, $500; Mrs. Charles B. Alexander, $500. Many others have given smaller amounts.

It is proposed to begin work on the animal hospital as soon as possible, and if there is not enough money to buy a large plot the league intends to start with a building with twenty-five stalls for horses and room for all kinds of dumb animals. The league already has a dispensary at No. 25 Lafayette street, where even a monkey has been treated. Women of the league said yesterday that many drivers depend greatly on the services of their horses and that the deaths of horses practically put families in the care of the city. The hospital probably will be built in the east side, in the downtown district. As the subscriptions come in more stalls will be added. There are many horses now at the rest farm at Matteawan, which also is run by the league.

WHAT WOMEN FIND IN THE SHOPS

One of the bargains which is offered at the Greenhut-Siegel Cooper Company's furniture sale, which begins to-day, is a three piece parlor suite at $125. The suite consists of an armchair, rocker and settee, all with mahogany finished frames and with the seats fitted with loose cushions covered with green silk plush.

The housewife usually feels that she cannot have too large a supply of table linen, for she never knows just when there will be an unexpected rush of social functions at that will strain her stock to the utmost. An opportunity to purchase tablecloth and napkins to match at a greatly reduced price is offered at Macy's. They are of Scotch manufactured linen satin damask, and a set of cloth and one dozen napkins costs $7.75.

The hostess is often puzzled as to just what to use as favors. A dainty little celluloid fan seen at John Daniel Sons & Co. might be well used for this purpose. The fan is decorated with a floral design painted in delicate colors and is priced at fifty cents. A large selection of designs is offered.

One of the new purses shown for women is known as the Mayfair. It is on sale by Mark Cross, and is priced at $7. The purse is made of soft pliable calfskin in gray and is five inches long and four and three-eighths inches deep. Near the top it is encircled by a fancy silk braid which is gathered into a tassel ornament at one side. In the centre from a tiny chain hangs a pearl studded initial in a gold hoop. The purse is satin lined and contains a small change purse and space for cards and handkerchief. The handle is of silk braid.

A blouse that is said to be very popular with the Parisian fashion devotees is made of chiffon over shadow lace and is navy blue in color. The blouse is designed with a lace yoke in a sort of vest effect and is trimmed with a band of meringue and hemstitching. Such a blouse was seen at Saks & Co.'s, marked to sell at the special price of $5.

Most dining rooms have for lighting purposes a dome which is suspended over the centre of the table. These are usually made of colored art glass and are so designed as to shed a pleasant glow over the whole room. A dome which may be fitted for use with either gas or electricity is made of sixty-six separate pieces of richly colored art glass in a Nile green, which are fitted into a solid brass frame. A three-inch band is around the bottom of the dome. For gas the price is $8.99, and for electricity slightly more. It was seen at the Simpson Crawford Company's store.

For general wear many women always are sure to have in their wardrobe a one piece blue serge dress. Such a dress is suitable for nearly any occasion and is always sure to be in style. A natty little one piece blue serge dress with a silk lined waist was seen at Stern Brothers' priced at $11.75.

The new spring styles in women's tailored suits which are being shown by Lord & Taylor include many fabrics. Men's wear serges, fancy diagonals, English whipcords and mixtures are the materials used in many of the models. The suits range in price from $35 to $85.

Joy of Living Is Keynote of Work of This Sculptor

GOOSE GIRL. MISS EDITH STEVENS PARSONS. LATEST WORK BY EDITH STEVENS PARSONS.

Miss Parsons' New Work a Figure of Boy Delighted in His Mastery of a Struggling Duck.

More strikingly than in any of her previous work does the joy of living furnish the keynote of the latest work of Edith Stevens Parsons, a well known young sculptor. It is the figure of a toddling boy. He has just taken his first step in the world and found it such a good place to be in that his face is wrinkled into an irresistible expression of glee, mischief and exquisite satisfaction. In his arms are clutched two ducks, one crumpled up and the other struggling to escape. You can feel the clutch of the boy's grip just as you would catch the infection of his delight. Around the base on which "boy" stands run other ducks in whimsical postures.

"The duck is one of my favorites," said Mrs. Parsons in her studio, at No. 204 West

Thirteenth street, yesterday. "He is so delightfully funny, so full of possibilities. Yes, that is a duck that my 'Goose Girl' is holding. 'Goose Girl' sounds better as a name, but the duck works in better. I study the ducks, dead ducks, pictures of them, everything that has anything to do with them."

Mrs. Parsons' "Goose Girl" won the prize offered some time ago by Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney for the best design for a garden figure and it is now being worked out on an ambitious scale. It represents a girl about eleven years old standing on one of them being a youngster holding a cat which has struggled until it is limp and resigned, while the boy can scarce contain himself for the fun he is having.

The boy that Mrs. Parsons is working on now is first cousin to one that was sent to Rome last year, where it attracted much attention and to one which Miss Carolyn Peck, of Providence, bought for a fountain piece in her garden.

Mrs. Parsons has done other figures of joyful boys with animals in their company, one of them being a youngster holding a cat which has struggled until it is limp and resigned, while the boy can scarce contain himself for the fun he is having.

'DON'T BITE POLICE' SUFFRAGISTS WIN SNOWBALL FIGHT

Illinois Leader Also Bans Horsewhips in New Decalogue for Her Sisters.

[SPECIAL DESPATCH TO THE HERALD.]
CHICAGO, Ill., Sunday.—Mrs. Catherine Waugh McCulloch, Evanston's woman justice of the Peace and a leader in the suffrage movement in Illinois, has given out a decalogue for Chicago suffragists.

"Don't bite policemen," is one of her prohibitions. She admonishes her sisters not to make suffrage speeches at street corner without first having obtained a permit; not to worry the Mayor about suffrage because "he will come out all right if he proves worthy to be the husband of Mrs. Harrison"; and that they should not throw stones at Governor Deneen for failing to get a suffrage bill through the Legislature when he "has a hard enough time trying to put through any of his own."

"Thou shalt not waylay our opponents with horsewhips. This method has no converting power in Illinois. "Thou shalt not yell 'Votes for women' through a megaphone from the roof of a convention hall, especially this slippery weather, but instead, go politely into the hall and ask for a suffrage resolution. When they pass it, thou shalt pass the hat for a collection."

"Thou shalt not think yourself a martyr for woman's cause, if some queer, silly suffrage effort fails."

"Thou shalt not go to jail unless thou must, and then keep it out of the newspapers."

"Thou shalt not expect experienced suffrage workers to drop all the old methods to concentrate on some untried invention which thou thyself art unwilling to put thy own time and money into."

"Thou shalt not refuse to pay thy taxes if thou art willing to face and music and see thy property sold. Our Revolutionary fathers did not tip any of their own property into Boston Harbor."

Novel Battle by Women on Board the Steamship Celtic During Recent Storm.

When the steamship Celtic, of the White Star line, arrived in New York yesterday morning the passengers told of a pitched battle in a snowstorm on the promenade deck, the ammunition being snowballs.

The issue at stake was woman suffrage. Miss Adrienne Augarde, a staunch supporter of the ballot for her sex, was leader of one army. Miss Della Johnson was leader of the anti-suffragists and the armies lined up on the promenade deck. The referee, G. H. Brewer, pursuer of the Celtic, stood on a hatch where he could see how the battle went.

Miss Louise Chapal and Miss Beatrice Guernsey acted as lieutenants to Miss Augarde, and Miss N. Livingstone and Miss Bertina Kirk were second and third in command of the "anti."

Slowly the suffragists drove the anti-suffragists from their position until they had the enemy almost crowded into the after part of the ship. Miss Augarde then threw a snowball at the "anti." "If you voted like you throw snowballs!"

Just then a nice, hard lump of snow landed just behind his left ear. "You win," he called to the suffragists, "and I head the list of wounded."

Others on board the Celtic were Mr. F. R. Hazard, Mrs. Hortense Paulsen, a concert singer; Mr. and Mrs. J. Morgan Wing; Mr. Kenneth Croft and Mr. and Mrs. George L. Harrison.

ICE HOLDS UP STEAMSHIP.
Troubles due to wintry weather were not ended for the Lorraine, of the French line, when she arrived in New York Harbor yesterday. When the Lorraine was reported at Sandy Hook two tugboats began to break up the ice at the line's pier. When the Lorraine arrived the tugboats still were trying to break a passage for her. The steamship was held up half an hour.

Among the first cabin passengers on board the Lorraine was the Viscountess de Fontenay, wife of the French Consul General at Budapest. She is going to Montreal to visit friends. The Comtesse de Castelnau and her cousin, Mr. Charles de Goutte Wydzga, also were passengers on board the Lorraine. Others on board the Lorraine were Mons. C. H. B. Harmon, of Paris; Mons. J. Boucquet, an inspector for the French line, and Mons. Thierry Mallet.

PRINCESS' WATCH COMES TO NEW YORK

Jewelled Chatelaine from Collection of Niece of Napoleon I. Is Now Owned Here.

A relic of Princess Mathilde, daughter of Jerome Bonaparte, youngest brother of Napoleon Bonaparte, has just been acquired by Koopman & Co., dealers in antique furniture in East Forty-sixth street. It is a handsome gold watch, with enameled and diamond studded chatelaine, which formed part of the collection of the Princess which was disposed of after her death in Paris in 1904.

The gift was one which the Princess received in her youth, but whether from Napoleon Bonaparte or from her father is in doubt, though it is probable she received it from her father.

The salon of the Princess Mathilde, which she held as Mme. Demidoff, began in Paris in 1847 and was frequented by some of the most celebrated men and women of her time. Its history is a part of the history of the second empire. Among the frequenters of the salon were Napoleon III. and the Prince of Wales, afterward King Edward, and there were always groups of intellectuals and wits of considerable reputation to be found in the apartment in the Rue de Berri.

Princess Mathilde was a great lover of art in all phases, and the beauty of her establishment in Paris made her collection one of the most notable of its kind, the watch and chatelaine furnishing evidence of the good taste which characterized her selections of jewelry.

Mrs. Wilson, a skilled skater, in executing a fancy figure, failed to observe a large hole. As he disappeared Miss Tibbits raced across the ice to his aid. She threw one end of the fur to Mr. Wilson. He grasped it with both hands and was pulled to firm ice.

The young woman, who is fond of athletics, stopped an automobile and the occupants wrapped Mr. Wilson in fur robes and took him to his home.

She Aids Women of Puerto Rico to Better Conditions of Life

Mrs. Miller Obtains a Market Here for Their Beautiful Drawnwork.

If a ballot were taken among the women of Puerto Rico to determine who has done most to encourage industry, culture and sanitary conditions of living in the homes of residents of that island since it became a possession of the United States, the vote probably would be unanimous for Mrs. Robert A. Miller, who has a city home at No. 2 West Ninety-second street, Manhattan.

From an occupation that gave a scanty livelihood to a few Mrs. Miller in thirteen years has developed Spanish drawn needlework, an art in which the women of Puerto Rico are particularly adept, to the point where it is one of the leading exports of the island and requires the services of thousands of women and girls. Her work in behalf of the women of the island has enabled hundreds of them to purchase homes and has brought prosperity to families where poverty once reigned.

Mrs. Miller's husband was, until his death last June, postmaster at Ponce, and in her efforts to better the condition of the people of the island she had his assistance. He received his appointment from President McKinley in 1898.

From now on Mrs. Miller will divide her time between Ponce and New York. While on the island she will direct the activities of those who are in charge of the thousands of women workers, and while in New York she will seek to extend the market for Spanish drawnwork. Up to the present the product has been sold principally through women's church and social organizations.

Mrs. Miller's efforts in behalf of the women of Puerto Rico began when the Puerto Rico Benevolent Society was organized for the relief of the sufferers of the cyclone that swept over the island on August 8, 1899. Through her the women of the island sent to this country for the first time the beautiful drawnwork, which found a ready market.

Having discovered that their work was appreciated in this country, the women asked Mrs. Miller to establish a permanent market for their products. Through the benevolent society more than $175,000 worth of Spanish drawnwork has been sold in the United States in the last thirteen years. Mrs. Miller estimates that the value of the imports now amount to $25,000 a year.

In addition to opening a market for Spanish drawnwork, Mrs. Miller has taught the women of Puerto Rico many new patterns and has induced them to extend their field of operation.

"When I went to the island the drawnwork was found principally in handkerchiefs and pillow slips," Mrs. Miller said yesterday. "Now the work is done on dresses, shirt waists, table linen and other articles that appeal to the hearts of women. Through the work the women of Puerto Rico have been taught the value of cleanliness, and the artistic side of their nature has been developed."

ADAMLESS EDEN WELCOMES MEN FOR BETTER BABIES

Country Wide Campaign To Be inaugurated for Instruction of Mothers.

[SPECIAL DESPATCH TO THE HERALD.]
BOSTON, Mass., Sunday.—Massachusetts women, led by Mrs. David C. Mears, have inaugurated a campaign to be waged all over the United States to insure better babies.

Beginning next month, in every city, town and village, meetings will be held, and the topic "Better Babies and Better Men and Women" will be discussed. Mothers will be instructed in the care of infants, in their bathing, their dressing, in ventilation and in the necessity of pure and clean milk. Later will come important studies of the growing child, the need for good companionship, the need for recreation, the need for study and for careful formulation of an educational plan.

"The campaign is one of the utmost importance to the country," says Mrs. Mears. "It will mean fewer infant deaths, suicides, fewer crimes, fewer hospitals, fewer

JEWISH COOKING TO BE TAUGHT TO GIRLS

Teachers' College Adds a Course Which Will Enable Graduates to Diversify Instruction to Pupils.

Cosmopolitan cooking is the latest course of instruction added to the curriculum of Teachers' College. It is called "Problems of Technical Education," and the first series of problems is official, known as "The Dietary Laws of Judaism" and will be developed in three lectures by Miss Donna Saruya, teacher of domestic science in Public School No. 1.

"We have in Teachers' College," said Dr. Benjamin R. Andrews, the head of the household and industrial arts department, yesterday, "many young women students, both Jews and Gentiles. Most of these go out to teach after they have been graduated from this institution and many of them are assigned to schools where the majority of the students are of one nationality."

"After considerable investigation we discovered that for an instructor in cooking to teach the children American dishes where most of the pupils were from Jewish homes bore little fruit. The children could not prevail upon their parents to change their diet, which, after all, would be foolish, as the Jewish style of cooking and their dishes are as good as any."

"So when a child went home and informed her parents that she had been to cooking school and had learned to prepare Boston baked beans it meant nothing to the parents, who were used to eating gefilte fish. We have started with three lectures on Jewish cooking, and there is a possibility of these being followed with courses in the national dishes of other countries if this series proves successful."

There was joy in Jewish homes on the east side yesterday when it was reported that the children were to be taught in school the recipes for their favorite dishes.

divorces, fewer prisons. We want to help all children, irrespective of condition. For many times the child of the wealthier does not get the training, the real live and the personal care that it should, through lack of seriousness on the part of its parents. "I believe crime is largely the result of environment, largely the result of the carelessness of the parents and of bad influence and lack of good training."

"Few children will go wrong if they associate with good children. Few will be vicious if removed from vicious examples. Few will be ill if they carry out of healthy parents who observe carefully the laws of hygiene."
